Former Minister Visits Didsbury

Rev. C. S. Finkbeiner of Hanna, a former minister at Didsbury, occupied the pulpit at Zion Evangelical Church on Sunday morning.

Mr. Finkbeiner, who is 79 years of age and one of the oldest ministers of the Evangelical Church, only retired from active ministry last year. He had charge of the Didsbury church from 1908 to 1911.

He was appointed historian of the Northwest Canada Conference and is now engaged in writing the history of the Evangelical Church in Western Canada.

Besides visiting friends in this district he is also visiting his daughter, Mrs. Sam Reiber of Olds.

Will Broadcast Over CFCN

On Sunday, January 21st, a group from Mountain View Bible School will broadcast from the studio of CFCN, Calgary, from 9:30 - 10:00 a.m. Tune in and hear this program.

First War Loan Over-Subscribed

At the close of the second day it was reported that the war loan had been over-subscribed and that applications had been made for $200,460,000.

It was announced, however, that the books will remain open indefinitely, although only $200,000,000 will be allotted. Preference will be given to the smaller subscriptions.

With $200,000,000 "cash money" in the treasury, that part of the war financing of the more immediate future to be derived from borrowing is determined. It will be one of the basis of the budget expected early in March.

I.O.D.E. to Provide Soldiers Comforts

The I.O.D.E. in Alberta has undertaken to provide field comforts for the men in camps throughout the province, as well as for Alberta men overseas, thus relieving the Red Cross Society of this responsibility.

Mrs. B. E. Canniff, of Calgary, assistant provincial war work convenor, has been appointed convenor of the committee to look after the supplies for Southern Alberta, which includes the territory from Red Deer to the U.S. border. She is being assisted by Mrs. Thomas Bishop, Mrs. E. R. Knight, Mrs. M. H. Wright and Mrs. Wallace Neale.

It is estimated that 1,000 pairs of socks a month will not be too many for the needs of the troops. Approximately 600 pairs of these will go overseas. In addition sweaters, wristlets, Balaclavas and other supplies will be needed. The committee suggests that those who do not care to knit might be willing to donate fifty cents a month, the money equivalent to a pair of socks.

Supplies will be sent to men in the army, air force and navy.

The local chapter of the I.O.D.E. are organizing to do their share in this work and a committee has been appointed to raise funds with which to carry on the work.

Triplets.

Triplets were born on Saturday at the farm of Ed. Blain east of town, when a half-blood Jersey cow gave birth to three calves, two males and one female.

The calves are of normal size, all doing well and are being fed by hand.

This cow, which is six years old, has given birth to five calves within two years.

Red Cross Drive Well Over the Top

The Red Cross drive for funds in this district has been very successful and the local branch received a letter from Commissioner Tomlinson complimenting them on the wonderful showing they had made.

While $1,150.00 from all sources was set as the objective by the committee, cash subscriptions amounting to $1,583.87 have already been turned in to the treasurer and there are also pledges which amount to over $300.00.

The sum of $1,000.00 has been remitted to headquarters and $198.76 has been paid out for the purchase of supplies.

The financial committee and the people of the district are to be complimented for the splendid response to this appeal, as we believe we are right in stating that Didsbury raised a larger amount than any town in Southern Alberta, outside of the cities.

Dedicated Gifts of Royal Candlesticks

At the Banff Anglican Church on Sunday morning the Bishop of Calgary dedicated the candlesticks recently given to the church by His Majesty King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. Their Majesties recently sent the candlesticks as a memento of their attendance at the church during their Canadian tour.

To Each His Share

Canada's war effort, at least for the first year of the conflict, is to cost this country approximately $350,000,000 or about a million dollars per day the Canadian people have been officially advised by the prime minister.

When reduced to its simplest terms—a cost of $35 a year for every man, woman and child, as has already been noted in the daily press—this is no small item, and connotes a really substantial contribution for the average individual. While some of it will come out of the pocket book in the current year in the form of cash, the balance will be expended as a debt to be liquidated in the future.

This expenditure, however, by no means represents the entire cost of Canada's share in the war effort during the year. In addition to the official expenditure made by the government of the country, substantial sums are being and will be raised by various organizations, all more or less directly related to the work of making Canada's effort more efficient and more effective and these represent an additional contribution for the winning of the war from the individual purse.

With the amount of money and credit available to the individual it stands to reason if the average Canadian is to be given an opportunity to make a maximum contribution to the war effort, other calls upon his purse must be curtailed as far as possible and this means, among other things, an urgent necessity for a reduction in the cost of government and particularly in the provincial and municipal spheres. It is going to entail sacrifices, not only on the part of the individual, but also on the part of the provincial and municipal administrations of the country. Every dollar of cash or credit expended for provincial and municipal services that can be saved, represents a dollar, in cash or credit, released for the objective of national preservation.

This point should not be overlooked by the individual taxpayer, who will be well advised to curb, for the present, his desire for additional social services and to make his voice heard in a demand for the practice of rigid economies by the subservient administrations. By so doing he will be playing an important part in seeing to it that governmental costs which can be saved are not hamstringing his own ability to assist in the country's major job, that of winning the war, and winning it as speedily as possible.

Voluntary Duties

The contribution to be made by Canadians towards the cost of the war will be in two forms, levies made by the national government to provide the expense of arming, equipping, training, transporting and maintaining Canada's fighting forces and voluntary donations in money, goods, time and talent to provide for such adventitious aids as comforts, recreation and entertainment of these forces, equally necessary, if the morale and enthusiasm of the men is to be kept at its highest and therefore, most effective pitch. In addition to that, it has already been intimated, the people of the country will be called upon to supplement their voluntary efforts by contributions towards a government loan to be subscribed entirely within the confines of the country and to represent that portion of the national cost of the war financed on credit basis.

Insofar as the direct national levy in the pocket books of the individual is concerned this will undoubtedly be imposed in the form of increased taxes on income and commodities and it is the duty of the people of a country who have unanimously declared their determination to do their part in abolishing the menace of Hitlerism to pay these imposts not only willingly and cheerfully but gladly.

But, as has already might have been inferred, the duty of the Canadian has only begun when these national levies have been paid. There are the other and voluntary calls which are being made and will continue to be made for essential war efforts by such organizations as the Canadian Red Cross Society, the Salvation Army, the returned soldier organizations and others and these are just as much obligations which the people of the country imposed upon themselves when they decided to play a part in the war drama overseas as a measure of self-preservation and security from aggression.

Job For Everybody

It is to be presumed that the levies imposed by the national government will, as far as it is humanly possible, be based on ability to pay and from these imposts there will be no escape. Every person will contribute his or her share. It is to be hoped that that people will carry the same principle into the field of voluntary effort. If this done, those who have the money will purchase war bonds to the extent of their ability. They will contribute as generously as their means allow to the Red Cross Society, the Salvation Army and other organizations providing assistance in various forms to Canadian boys in khaki or in naval and air force uniforms. Those who have little or no money to spare beyond the necessities of life after paying the national levies will make what contributions they can in goods and services. Many will contribute in both forms.

And this is as it should be. Let each contribute according to his or her means and assist, not only in winning this war but aid in bringing it to the speediest possible conclusion. Through parliament everybody agreed to participate in this war. It is, therefore, everybody's war and everybody's duty to wage it with intelligence, with the utmost vigor and with all the resources available.

"The month's prize goes to the Scotchman who sent the surgeon's men through a cannery factory bill to his father-in-law when he came a girl worker, and said: "She learned that his wife's tonsils really puts the pork in the beans." Should have been taken out when "Where is the girl who takes it off?" asked one of the group.

Give Demonstration Before Large Crowd At Temple In Singapore

Nearly 100 Hindus, including one woman, walked across a large pit of red hot embers at the Sri Mariamman Temple in Singapore, watched by a number of Europeans and 4,000 Hindus.

So great was the heat from the pit that the men raking it with 10-foot poles were constantly cooled with buckets of water.

Some of the fire-walkers raced over the pit with hands upraised, others walked across slowly with deliberate nonchalance, while one man danced a half minute in the middle of the pit.

Diagrams Show Popular Steps

The delightful waltz! What a picture you are, gliding from one lovely variation to another.

And luckily you can learn such variations at home from simple diagrams. No excuse then for stumbling, spoiling your partner's dreamy mood—because you don't know the step!

See the diagram of the Canter Waltz with our picture. To do the "canter" part, just step forward with right foot on Count 1; on Counts 2 and 3 take a long slow step forward with left foot.

Now go into a waltz step forward, Count 4: step forward on right foot, 5—Place left foot a short distance forward and to left, 6—Close with right foot.

Remember that graceful posture counts even more in the waltz than in other dances. Hold your head up, stand erect with hips well under body. And easily you follow in even the trickiest variations if you remember the girl steps a split second later than the man.

Be at home in any dance—with any partner! Our 32-page booklet gives basic steps and variations for the waltz, fox-trot, slow fox-trot, rumba, tango and shag. Gives pointers on leading and following, how to keep time to different rhythms.

Promoting Safety

Difficulty Lies Mostly With Drivers Who Violate Rules

Work Of Entomologists In Saving Field Crops Worth Millions To Farmers

An appraisal of the total financial value of many of the services of the Dominion Department of Agriculture is extremely difficult, if not impossible. For example, the saving effected by entomological work in the control of field insects in Canada through the gradual incorporation of the control recommendations into farm practice year after year is very great but is not always easily apparent. For example, in the year 1938, officials of the Provincial Department of Agriculture of Alberta estimate that the grasshopper control campaign alone resulted in a cash saving of approximately $30,000,000. A joint enterprise of the Dominion Entomological Division and the Province of Saskatchewan in the use of substitutes for bran in grasshopper poison on a campaign scale in that Province resulted in the saving of at least $40,000 in the purchase of supplies.

In Alberta, in connection with the control of the pale western cutworm, it is estimated a saving of $375,000 was effected on about 150,000 acres on which the recommendation for the maintenance of a "crusted summertime" was followed by the farmers. Also in connection with the control of this insect, a clear saving of $235,200 resulted on 30,000 acres of wheat under observation when the recommended so-called "starvation" control practice was put into practice.

If similar surveys could be made in connection with the farm control of other insects, states the Dominion Minister of Agriculture in his annual report, similar impressive totals would be accumulated, as illustrated by the saving of $1,000 in wheat on one farm alone near Drumheller, and a similar saving of $470 on another farm near Nobleford, Alberta, in connection with the use of a bromegrass trap crop in protecting wheat from the wheat stem sawfly. In British Columbia, the simplification of control recommendations saved about $960 to one hop grower in the Fraser Valley in connection with the protection of the crop in his hop yards from red spider infestation.

Hitler's Eagle Nest

French Ambassador Tells Of Visit To Retreat In Mountains

A visit to Adolf Hitler's "eagle nest" retreat in the Bavarian mountains definitely gave him "the creeps". Andre Francois-Poncet, French ambassador to Rome, said in a report to his government.

The report of Francois-Poncet, formerly ambassador to Germany, was published in a French "yellow book" consisting of more than 350 diplomatic documents on international events from the Munich agreement to the start of the present war.

"I felt suspended in space," Francois-Poncet wrote to the foreign office October 20, 1938, during the confused post-Munich era.

The effect was grandiose, savage, almost like an hallucination."

Francois-Poncet was invited to the retreat, which he said was surrounded by machine gun nests, when he took leave of Germany to assume his new post in Rome.

The ambassador said he asked himself whether he was in a "Victor Hugo Fantasy" or "a den of thieves where they rested and counted their treasures."

Caught In Own Trap

Russia's Attack On Finland Is Legally A Civil War

There may be some who still think that Stalin and Molotoff are the bright boys of European politics, but the fact remains that they are caught in their own booby trap if the nations have the courage to take advantage of it. The Russians are still not officially at war with Finland and they have set up a puppet Finnish Government. That makes whatever is going on in Finland legally a civil war like the Spanish conflict. There is thus the precedent of Russian, Italian and German intervention in Spain for the nations going into Finland to beat the daylights out of Russia.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

War Of Words

Propaganda From All Nations Makes Babel Of Tongues

The war of words, chief difference between the first and second Great Wars, gathers force almost daily as speechmakers and radio announcers of belligerents clutter the ether with a babel of propagandist tongues.

In these days only those without radio sets can stay mentally neutral as a man in the cactus country of Mexico or the tundra of Arctic Canada can listen to London, Berlin, Paris, Warsaw or New York. His only defence against partisanship or boredom is to switch off.

While the radio enables the listener to hear such items as a graphic account by "Stefan the Stubborn," Lord Mayor of Warsaw, of the destruction of his city by the German military machine, it also brings him floods of so-called news from total Italian countries, written by propagandists whose news sense and veracity make a democrat's head ache or his ribs ache with laughter.

Among this confusion rise the voices of British Broadcasting Corporation announcers, speaking in 12 languages of Europe and the Near East, soberly broadcasting news as it is reported by the world's great news-gathering agencies, or setting forth authoritative British views on world events.

News bulletins are put out in French, German, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, Arabic, and six languages added since the war started: Czech, Serbo-Croat, Rumanian, Magyar, Polish and Greek. The former news bulletin in Afrikaans has become a twice-daily feature.

Before the war it was estimated 150,000,000 persons were able to hear BBC broadcasts; since hostilities began the number of reachable persons has increased to 400,000,000. BBC engineers say their facilities are so good that they cannot be jammed off the air.

A Law-Abiding People

Something Drastic Has To Happen Before Germans Will Revolt

It would be rash to infer that Germany is on the eve of revolt. The German like the Briton—is a law-abiding animal and does not revolt with the alacrity of the Latin. But the discontent of the millions is the only one of the dangerous factors with which the regime has to reckon.

At the other end of the social scale is the army which is still bitter about the murder of Schleicher and his wife, and even more bitter about the murder of Von Fritsch. The loyalty of the army to Germany cannot be questioned; very questionable however, is its loyalty to the Nazis, especially Nazis like Goebbels and Ribbentrop, and Hitler himself is far from being persona grata with the soldiers. Himmler has diluted—if that be the right word—the army with thousands of his Gestapo thugs, and to the extent of that penetration he has secured the regime against a military coup d'état. The soldiers are suspected by the Gestapo; and the Gestapo is suspected by the soldiers, and which is important—is hated by the Germans at large. There would indeed be no holding the army if Von Blomberg died suddenly and mysteriously. "Where is Von Blomberg?" is a question that is on the lips of all Germany. He was a close friend of Von Fritsch's; if he should suffer the same fate, then, in the famous phrase of Talleyrand, it would be the beginning of the end of the Nazis. —London Truth.

Demand For Flax

Western Canada Farmers Should Grow This Essential War Material

The war has increased the market potentiality of fibre flax, according to L. R. Key, Manitoba authority, and Western Canada farmers should be encouraged to cultivate this essential war material.

Until recent political changes in Europe, Great Britain and Northern Ireland had been able to import most of their supplies of fibre flax from Estonia, Latvia and Soviet Russia. Now these sources of supply have been curtailed.

Key pointed out that the importance of developing the possibilities of this market is emphasized by the fact British importers annually buy about 46,000 tons of fibre flax at approximately $16,000,000.

The three products of this industry which are practical to western production are two fibres, green fibre and seed. Mr. Key said tests had indicated that fibres from Manitoba were equal in grade to the average product from Russia and other central European countries. Western producers should concentrate on replacing mid-European supplies which now represent the bulk of British imports.

In addition, Key said, there was a permanent market in Erie and Northern Ireland for flax seed.

"If there were 200,000 bushels available in western Canada, a ready market could be found for every bushel at remunerative prices," said Key.

Little Port Is Valuable

Petsamo Region In Finland Is Always A Busy Spot

The fact that the warm waters of the Gulf Stream sweep along the northern coast of Norway and bathe the Arctic shores of Finland's narrow corridor to the northern sea, makes the Petsamo region, on which the Russians are now concentrating one of their attacks, more important than it might seem at first glance.

True, a short distance inland valuable nickel properties are being developed, but quite apart from that the little port of Litnahamari at the mouth of the Petsamo River is a busy spot. "One may meet sailors of all nations," says one writer, "on its windswept quays, above which circle terns and guillemots and other Arctic seabirds."

There is a growing trade in timber at the little port and it is headquarters for valuable fisheries. Besides, owing to the beneficent influence of the Gulf Stream, it is an ice-free port.

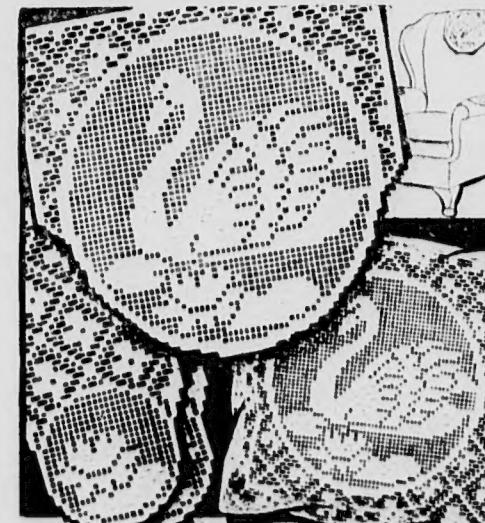

But industrial development is making the region steadily more important. At Janikoski the Finns are harnessing the rapids to develop electric power and 11,000 men live and work in the area all year round. Road building has made all-year-round bus traffic possible.

Prehistoric men were afflicted with dental trouble, the same as we are to-day. The idea that they had perfect teeth arose from the fact that early archaeologists picked out the most perfect specimens.

New Surgical Instrument

Skin Graft Solves Problem Of Getting Uniform Thickness

Surgeons at Los Angeles heard about a new precise mechanical skin grafting instrument which has given rise to the expression "lawnmower skin grafting." Dr. Earl C. Padgett, of Kansas City, described it before the Los Angeles Surgical Society.

The instrument is the result of 11 years' experimental work, during which many mechanisms were tried out and discarded before Dr. Padgett solved the problem of getting uniform thickness, and any thickness desired, of skin for grafting.

"The mechanism consists principally of a drum with a movable knife fixed at a definite distance from the drum," Dr. Padgett explained. "The skin of the donor to the graft is fastened to the smooth surface of the drum, the knife set at the thickness desired, and the rest is simple."

"It was found that the graft could cut to pattern, if one wished, by painting the area not to be removed with a solution of talc and ether. This solution prevents adhesion of the skin to the drum."

He calls the instrument a dermatome.

The deep intermediate skin graft as cut with the dermatome is comparatively certain to "take". The new graft shows practically no blisters or local areas of necrosis.

Modern Sound Detectors

Are Great Britain's Best Defence Against Surprise Air Raids

Germany can't make "silent" air raids on England as German bombers did in Spain. A. M. Low argues in a new book on "modern armaments". He reasons that modern sound detection will prevent this.

"The 'silent raids' made by German bombers in Spain depended upon the trick of ascending to a considerable height and then gliding perhaps 10 miles toward the target with the engine switched off, but it is doubtful whether it would be so effective against a country with well-organized anti-aircraft defences," he writes.

"The airplanes could be detected by the sound-detectors before they cut their engines, while the loss of height might make them easier prey to both guns and intercepting airplanes."

The writer calls sound detectors Britain's first line of defence because an airplane may be heard long before it can be seen.

One of Jupiter's nine moons is about 20,000,000 miles from the planet and requires about two years for one complete revolution.

In proportion to their numbers, the best patrons of taxicabs in any metropolitan city are the Chinese.

Sir Zafrullah Khan, India's representative at the Imperial war conference which has just ended, received me at an early hour and told me that the 400,000,000 people of his teeming sub-continent were united almost to a man in support of Britain's cause in this war, thus writes M. H. Hallton in the Toronto Daily Star.

What magic is this, I wondered. It is dramatic enough to think of a company of free British nations around the world—Canada, Australia and the rest—springing like young tigers to the defense of the little island on the shoulder of Europe. But India is not free and she is not British in culture or race. Yet her people, from the despotic princes to the left-wing Congress, are anxious for Britain to win and willing to serve.

"Are you sure?" I asked. "Do the masses of your people really know what the war is all about?"

Sir Zafrullah Khan, the bright-eyed bearded Moslem, representative of one-fifth of the people of the world, nodded quickly. "Every day," he said, "I pray five times with all the members of my household. Some of my servants cannot read and write. But after the service they tell me their views on the war."

"One of these men said to me: 'Baba Chamberlain did all he could to save the peace. Now we must give Hitler a clout on the head.' Not very philosophical, but he had the right idea."

"Another said: 'I knew years ago that Hitler was an evil man. That was when he killed his own friends. We of India will fight for the British Empire because the cause is good!'"

Sir Zafrullah Khan told me that ordinary Indians in the villages were sad and dismayed at the news of the sinking of the Courageous early in the war. And again I wondered what magic was this, that men of a subject race going about their daily work in Indian villages should pause and be grieved on learning that a faraway country of whom they might be expected to know nothing, had suffered a reverse.

What is the difference between India's attitude to this war and her attitude to the last?

"Last time," said Sir Zafrullah, "the ordinary Indian fought because the Empire was at war, but he regarded the war as a scrap between two nations far away. He was not vitally interested. This time, however, there is complete sympathy for the Allies. The Indian people know that this war will decide whether India's future is to be settled by men of your race and mine on democratic principles, or whether it is to fall into the hands of Hitlerism or some such evil creed. We Indians know. At present there is some dispute among ourselves about how soon we should press for dominion status but we are united in the knowledge that defeat for Britain will mean disaster for India. Therefore, we will help you to win the war."

In the last war India sent 4,000,000 men overseas and contributed nearly half a billion dollars to the cause. This time her effort will be greater still. "This time India will send as many soldiers as are asked for," said Sir Zafrullah. "We will send 2,000,000 if asked."

"But the pressing need is not for men, it is for supplies. Our ministry of supply has already sent immense quantities of steel, steel manufactures, pig iron, manganese, jute, army tents, boots, food and sandbags . . . Can you guess how many sandbags?"

I thought of a big figure and named it: 100,000,000.

"We have sent 500,000,000 already," was the reply, "and are sending 100,000,000 more every month until next April."

Number Being Reduced

The number of fertilizer mixtures offered for sale in Canada is being reduced under the War Measures regulations. Instead of sixty there will be only twenty on the market for 1940. This means greater economy in manufacture and less confusion to the grower.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. STRANG

Director "Crop Testing Plan"

For many years there has been a common belief that Futures Trading or what is commonly called speculative buying and selling, influences prices to rise or to fall.

Cornell University in 1924 investigated the results of 34 years of speculation in wheat, and the Food Research Institute of California in 1931 published a very complete study covering 41 years of speculative trading in wheat. The Research Department of the Searle Grain Co. Ltd. made an investigation of daily wheat prices from 1929 to 1937 to determine whether Futures Trading or speculation had influenced prices, and submitted this to the Turgeon Commission in 1937. None of these investigations revealed that Futures Trading or speculation had influenced prices.

Now Harvard University has just published results of an investigation made by Dean W. Mallott, who is Chancellor of the University of Kansas, into the subject of "Does Futures Trading Influence Prices?" This study, Dean Mallott concludes, "discloses no trace of influence on prices attributable to Futures Contract Trading or to speculation in Futures Contracts."

So it would seem that now, once and for all, we can remove from our minds the fear that speculation or Futures Trading has any bad effect upon price.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Recent severe frosts believed to have damaged crops in Hungary -- Wheat crops in India in need of moisture -- Large export business Canadian wheat and flour recently advanced Canadian prices -- Argentine corn crop in need of moisture.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Condition of winter crops in Italy good -- Rains beneficial to South African corn crops -- Australian wheat crop estimate again increased -- Very beneficial snows received over U.S. winter wheat area -- Bulgarian and Roumanian crops progressing under favorable conditions.

New Name Adopted
By Line Elevators

"A new name more descriptive of the organization has been adopted by the North-West Grain Dealers' Association," said G. W. P. Hefelfinger, president, in a statement issued Friday. The new name is "North-West Line Elevators' Association." The former name was adopted in the pioneer days of grain growing and trading in Western Canada. Membership in the Association is limited to country elevator organizations whose function is the handling of grain.

"The function of the North-West Grain Dealers' Association has been that of a service organization to companies who operate a total of 3,471 line country elevators and terminal elevators with a total capacity of 83,000,000 bushels, and the farming community which they serve. Line elevators have centralized their efforts for the advancement of agriculture through this organization," the statement continues. "The latest move of the Association in endeavoring to extend its usefulness has been the organization of an Agricultural Department under direction of Dr. K. W. Neatby, one of the outstanding field crop authorities of Western Canada. This department is organized for the sole purpose of rendering additional assistance in the struggle for healthier and more prosperous agricultural industry on the Prairies.

"The North-West Line Elevators' Association looks forward to an era of even greater service to Western agriculture. While advocating the continuance of the Canadian Wheat Board and the guaranteed minimum price for wheat, the Association has also always recognized that the open market renders an essential and useful service to agriculture. So long as it continues to do so, the line elevators will always advocate its continuance and will make use of the open market in the same manner as pools and other marketing agencies. If any sound marketing method is evolved which can serve the producers better than does the open market or the Board, then the line elevators will be the first to adopt the improved grain marketing system."

PREMIER HEPBURN says:

"ONTARIO STANDS READY"

"Ontario is responsible for one-half the industrial output of the Dominion, and forty-four per cent of the entire production from all sources. Translated into money, this means over Two and One-Quarter Billion Dollars annually.

"By unanimous resolution of the Legislature, Ontario indicated her immediate readiness to mobilize these immense resources on behalf of Great Britain and France, the two great democracies from which most of our people have sprung.

"The issues in the present conflict have been so clearly drawn that our freedom-loving citizens were never more unitedly resolved to accept the challenge. With men, materials, and resources, Ontario stands ready."

(Signed) M. F. HEPBURN, Prime Minister.

ONTARIO has four hundred and twelve thousand square miles with the largest population in the Dominion, as well as great diversity in activities. She has mines, farms, fruits, industries, woods, lakes and mighty rivers. Ontario has lived up to her opportunities; expanded her markets to all parts of Canada and the Empire — buying from all parts of Canada — selling to all parts.

Remember, when you buy a Canadian-Built car, you are helping support an industry that distributes more than $22,000,000.00 annually in wages and salaries to many thousand families dependent on the industry itself. Add to these the families that are supported by industries supplying raw and finished materials to the Automobile manufacturers, and you get an idea of what this activity means to the Canadian Home Market.

A busy Automotive Industry in war time is a live asset indeed — a truly national war enterprise.

BUSTLE-BOW ACCESSORY FROCK

By Anne Adams

"Who Is she?" they'll buzz admiringly when you make your entrance in this captivating dress. A quietly distinguished style—Anne Adams' Pattern 4310—yet it will hold the centre of the stage anywhere. Because fashion so enthusiastically "backs" the bustle, the sash ties in a big, luscious bustle-bow in back. Without the sash just the high front pointed waist seam alone looks slimly smart. And don't miss the six-panelled skirt and that very new back buttoning. Your gold jewelry will gleam against the high neckline, and the round young yoke holds in the soft bodice fulness below. Make the sleeves short, three-quarter or long length.

Corn Syrup Very Popular

Is Found Valuable In Preparation Of Baby Formulas

Authorities all over the country recognize the value of corn syrup in the preparation of baby formulas. This is because corn syrup is rich in dextrose and maltose a most desirable form of carbohydrate food, for the modification of milk. And there is a further reason for urging the use of corn syrup in infant diets and in the diets of growing children and adults, too; because it is so easily digestible, and provides quickly available energy material (a serious consideration, where this angle of the diet requires supplementing, as well as for regular use). It is a convenient and economical food to use just as it is, or in its equally famous role as "mixer".

To Sweeten Cereals

Use corn syrup to sweeten cereals, fruits (you'd like what it does to the morning orange or grapefruit) beverages and so on. Learn its value in giving delightful character to pudding sauces, ice-cream sauces, toppings for upside-down cakes, candies, puddings, etc. and keep it in mind, too, for canned fruits and jams and marmalades, when the preserving season comes around again. Give it to the kiddies to spread on buttered bread or crackers, as dessert or as a between-meal "piece"; they'll love it.

Wise housewives everywhere are joining the movement for heavier use of corn syrup. There's little doubt that they will be rewarded by seeing the result of its health-promoting value, right through the family!

Contain No Silver

Alloy In Bells Is Mixture Of Copper And Tin

When Edgar Allan Poe wrote his famous poem, "The Bells", and spoke about the tintinnabulation of the silver bells he did so perhaps for the same reason that Dr. Samuel Johnson gave for making a mistake in reference to a horse's pastern—"sheer ignorance". At any rate many writers and speakers refer to the "silvery tone of bells". Silver no doubt has a tone of its own, but there is no silver in bells.

The fact was brought out the other day when one of the bells of Westminster was recast at the Croydon foundry of Johnson which has been making bells for hundreds of years. The captain of the Westminster bellringers threw a sixpence into the cauldron and an eager boy threw in another but that is all the silver that will be in a bell weighing 2,519 pounds. Bells are made of an alloy of 13 parts copper to four of tin nothing else.

Perhaps it is a pity to destroy a pleasing myth, but those "silvery tones" you hear are chiefly copper.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Right And Justice

Doctrines Taught By Totalitarian States Are Against Christianity

The doctrines advanced by Hitler and Stalin are the negation of all that Christianity has taught through the centuries, and if they are allowed to prevail there will be no safety nor security for any nation that is founded on the principles of truth and justice. If, as Shakespeare says, "thrice armed is he that hath his quarrel just," the Allies should be invincible.

They have the sympathy of the entire world, with the exception of the totalitarian nations. This allows them to draw supplies of food and munitions wherever they can be procured. After all it is remarkable, in spite of the boastful statements made by the authors of force, how mankind responds to the appeal of right and justice.—Brantford Expositor.

Something new in road signs which has a deep significance is one that is found in a small Ontario town. The sign reads: "Slow; No Hospital". Not a bad traffic sign at that.

New Records Established

In Royal Bank Statement

Assets of $1,014,000,000 Highest in Bank's History—Deposits Up Over $100,000,000 to Establish New Record—Loans in Canada Increase $16,000,000—Profits Moderately Higher.

Marked growth in all departments of the bank's business is reflected in the Annual Balance Sheet and Profit and Loss Account for the year ending November 30, 1939, being issued by The Royal Bank of Canada to its shareholders.

Total assets amount to $1,014,708,000, an increase of $106,643,000 over last year's figures, and the highest in the bank's history. Only in the Annual Balance Sheet of 1929 has The Royal Bank of Canada previously shown assets in excess of one billion dollars.

Deposits Up Over $100,000,000

Total deposits including deposits by Governments, banks and the public amount to $911,519,210, an increase of over $107,000,000, as compared with the corresponding figures last year. Deposits stand at the highest point in the history of the Bank. To the extent of $39,000,000 the increase is accounted for by larger balances due to the Dominion Government. Non-interest-bearing deposits increased approximately $18,000,000.

Current Loans Increase

The upward trend in current loans in Canada which began in 1937 has been maintained, the increase for the year amounting to over $16,000,000. Loans outside of Canada, however,

Perfectly Seaworthy

Vessels That Ply The Great Lakes Can Sail The Seven Seas

Fears may be expressed by some people regarding the ability of the vessels which have been transferred from Great Lakes to ocean service to withstand Atlantic weather conditions.

Perhaps they forget that a considerable number of the freighters in service on the Great Lakes and the upper St. Lawrence were actually built in British yards and made their way across the Atlantic under their own steam before entering Canada's inland service.

It ought to be remembered that many of these steamers are just as large and just as seaworthy as the tramp vessels of foreign registry which ascend the river from the ocean during the season of navigation and ply constantly between European ports and the Great Lakes.

As a matter of fact, the vessels that travel Great Lakes routes have to be sound and seaworthy because, when stormy weather prevails on those inland seas, it needs strong hulls and good navigators to keep them on an even keel.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

Strong Liquid Position

As might be expected under existing conditions, the bank's liquid position is particularly strong, immediately realizable assets amounting to no less than 69% of the bank's total liabilities to the public. Cash assets alone, including bank balances, amount to no less than $234,483,550. Government and Provincial securities amount to $315,000,000, of which approximately $180,000,000 mature within two years.

Profits and Loss Account

Net profits, after providing for Dominion and Provincial taxes amounting to $1,204,867 and after making appropriations to Contingency Reserves, out of which provision for all bad and doubtful debts has been made, amount to $3,724,842 a moderate increase over the 1938 figures; $2,800,000 was distributed in dividends, the usual contribution of $300,000 was made to the Pension Fund Society and $250,000 was written off Bank Premises Account. The balance of Profit and Loss carried forward amounted to $3,096,252, an increase of $374,843.

The Annual General Meeting of the shareholders will be held at the Head Office of the bank at eleven a.m. on January 11, 1940.

Australian Explorer Suspends Arctic Expedition For Duration Of War

Sir Hubert Wilkins, Australian explorer and adventurer, said he has suspended plans for an Arctic submarine expedition and will offer his services to Canada in her war effort.

Sir Hubert, who has halted construction on the submarine started last summer, went to Ottawa to confer with government officials. His experience will be offered in any capacity it is wanted, he said in an interview at Montreal.

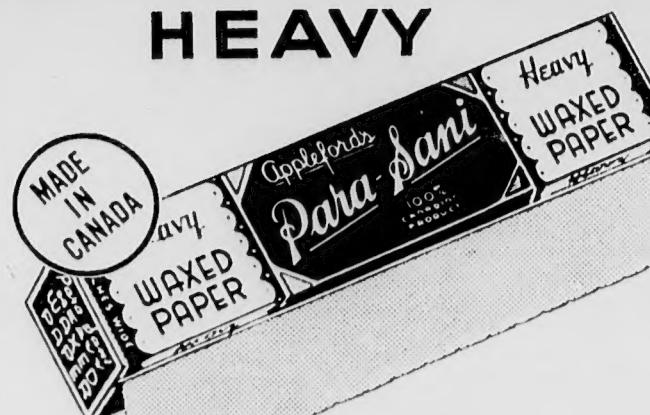

Success of the Arctic venture depends on international co-operation impossible during the war, the veteran of many Iceland adventures believed. He hopes to resume plans for the proposed expedition immediately after the war.

With the Australian air force in the first Great War, Sir Hubert since has headed numerous ventures both to the Arctic and the Antarctic. He considers submarines the most practical craft for an Arctic expedition.

Able to travel far beneath the ice formation, a submarine can rise by drilling a hole through the ice when its batteries need recharging, he said. On arrival, it can anchor on the bottom of the ocean and not be moved by drifting ice from its location.

CHAPTER XI

The following day, the Peterboro left the lake and shortly passed the mouth of the Nipiw, the River of Death, which marks the hunting dead line between the Fort Chimo Naskapi and the Caribou People. According to Napayo, they were now within two days' travel of the high terraces that mark the western slope of the valley at the mouth of the River of Skulls. At noon, they reached a wide rocky gorge where the river had cut through the strata to race over limestone ledges in a succession of chutes and whitewater reaches, broken by pools hundreds of yards in extent. For hours the four men toiled carrying canoe and supplies to the foot of the impassable water where the canoe might again be launched. When John McCord appeared, bending double under the last huge load suspended by the tump-line over his head, he asked:

"Did you men notice the salmon in those pools back there? There's a big hatch of flies coming down stream and the pools are alive with feeding winninish."

"What do you say we camp here and set a net?" suggested the practical Alan.

McCord looked pityingly at his friend. "Set a net?" he groaned. "And you with Scotch blood in your veins? Of course, a net's all right, boy, when we need grub for ourselves and the dogs. But back there's the best fly-fishing in Canada, just waiting for me. You people make camp while I have a go at those big fellows I saw breaking."

So McCord lashed a cod hook to a spruce stick for a gaff, then with his steel rod started back for the great pools which had made his fisherman's mouth water. A half-mile upstream he stopped at a pool, hundreds of feet in width, the flat surface of which was broken everywhere with the rising of feeding fish.

"What a pool! What a pool!" he muttered as he looped a cow-dung fly on his leader. "It's a crime to fish a pool like this with a steel rod that won't whip a fly fifty feet!"

Standing in the water to his knees McCord cast his fly. The cow-dung had hardly reached the surface when three fish leaped at it. He struck and a streak of silver flashed in the air. Then, fifty feet away, the salmon leaped, savagely shaking his head to free himself of the hook. Time after time, the gallant winninish broke the surface of the pool in a blur of thrashing silver and flying spray. At last, exhausted, the land-locked salmon was led in to the shore and gaffed.

"Seven-eight pounds, if he weighs an ounce!" exclaimed John, breaking the fish's neck with his knife and tossing it back among the stones. "It's a crime to take these beauties in a gill-net."

"It's a long way to come for it," chuckled the pleased sportsman, when he started back with a load of fish. "but the old Koksoak's got the best winninish fishing in the Dominion. That pool was full of beauties."

Suddenly there was the crunch of moccasins on pebbles behind him, and dropping the fish, McCord wheeled in his tracks to meet the impact of lunging bodies, while three pairs of sinewy arms circled his legs and waist.

Staggering backward, the surprised giant finally regained his balance then, spreading his legs, his big hands savagely tore at the throat and wrist of an Indian clinging to his waist. With the fury of a Berserk, he broke the grip of the Naskapi as he would that of a child, lifted him bodily in the air, while the others clung to his legs, and hurled him headlong to the boulders on the river shore below. Reaching the chin of the man on his right leg, by sheer strength the giant bent back the head until the neck snapped and the body fell limp. Then, whirling, he fell with his right knee in the ribs of the man still clinging desperately to his left leg, and, as the Indian relaxed his grip with the pain, McCord lifted him and sent him to the rocks below and picking up the limp shape at his feet pitched it after the other. Then he leaped to the shelter of a boulder as voices and the rush of feet warned him of new danger.

Up the shore among the rocks a group of five long-haired men arguing in shrill voices stared at him. McCord tore his big automatic from its shoulder holster beneath his shirt. The Naskapi faded from sight among the boulders.

"So! They thought they could take me with their bare hands!" he panted. "I wonder why they never tried to put a knife in me!"

Replacing his gun in its holster, McCord started wading his way up among the boulders that lined the side of the gorge. He travelled some distance from the spot where he had been rushed and evidently was not seen for he drew no fire. But from where he lay he was unable to locate any of the hidden Naskapi. He waited some minutes, then continued on up among the boulders, working his way cautiously down to them. The story of his narrow escape disquieted them.

The following day the valley steadily widened. The hills to the west of the Koksoak entirely flattened out and in the afternoon they reached their goal the mouth of the River of Skulls. The western slope of its valley rose in a succession of spruce clad terraces to merge with the white moss tundra beyond. It was unmistakable. Eyes moist with emotion, McCord gazed up the valley of the branch. Here was the picture that Aleck Drummond had indelibly etched in his memory. The thousand-mile traverse of forests, lakes and roaring rivers was behind him. He had kept his tryst with the spirit of Aleck. He had reached the River of Skulls.

"There she is!" he cried, his voice husky with feeling. "Just as Aleck described it a thousand times. The western shore terraced for miles, and cast your eyes on that rusted limestone over there!" He pointed upstream with his paddle. "Plenty of iron there, boys!"

"Well, here goes for the River of Skulls!" shouted Alan, carried away by McCord's excitement as he swung the bow of the Peterboro from the main stream. "Heather, you'll soon be picking gold nuggets right out of the sand!"

Heather smiled bravely back at the sternman but her eyes were haunted by fear. Although the men had refused to talk, she had guessed what had happened back at the gorge, what had driven them down river through the night. Again the Naskapi had struck at the white men entering their country. All through the summer and fall would hang the menace of sudden death to the gold hunters. And later, somewhere on the long trail back over the river ice and snow, McQueen and his half-breeds would be waiting. She smiled gallantly at the bronzed sternman whose gray eyes so reassuringly met hers, but in her heart was a lurking fear.

The actions of Noel in the bow drew the attention of those behind him.

"What d'you see, Noel?" asked Alan, as the bowman squinted at the long gravel point piled with boulders forming the tongue of the fork.

"Something een de edee ovair dere," replied the Indian. "We have a look."

The canoe approached the drifting object caught in an eddy, inshore, which had held Noel's sharp eyes.

"True as you're born!"

"A broken paddle! White man's too!" cried Alan.

"Ah-hah! McQueen lose dat paddle," commented Noel, lifting the broken blade from the water. "By gar, she ees split by a bullet!" he went on excitedly. "Look!"

He passed the shattered paddle back to McCord.

"True as you're born!" grunted the giant, showing the paddle to Alan. "They've been shot at by the Naskapi, above here! That was made by the ball from a muzzle loader."

Boundary Is Important

On Account Of War Canada-U.S. International Line Clearly Defined

Although it is illegal to fly military airplanes from this country to Canada and they must be pushed across the border on the ground, commercial aviation between the United States and the Dominion is maintained on regular schedules. The fact that Canada is at war has, however, emphasized the importance of the boundary line, for if military machines crossed it the result might be embarrassing, even though it is not to be expected that the trespassing machine would be shot down, as is the case in Europe.

Because of this the international line on the north is now being plainly defined. Where it follows waterways it is recognized by all fliers; where, as between Maine and New Brunswick and Maine and Quebec, it is a land-boundary, a broad swath is being cut through forest and field. This cleared strip is from 25 to 40 feet in width. The work is done by the two nations, each attending to the task on those portions of the line more conveniently reached from its territory.

A Canadian engineer accompanies each United States party as an observer, and a United States engineer accompanies each Canadian party. An incident of the war is the increase of border patrols to curb smuggling and illegal entry of persons, yet the boundary still maintains the fame conferred on it by the absence of military defenses. ## Was Hardly Courteous

Gruff Manners Displayed At Coronation Celebrations By Graf Spee

Two salty anecdotes about the Admiral Graf Spee, the German battleship which fled from British cruisers into Montevideo, are told by an officer who was guest aboard the British battleship Drake during the coronation celebrations at Spithead, May, 1937.

Foreign ships attending the review were drawn up in line parallel to British ships and opposite the Drake was the Spee. Each foreign ship was the guest, so to speak, of the British ship facing it. The Drake's officers had nothing but the highest admiration for the Spee as a ship and for her company.

But next to the Spee in line was a Russian battleship. It is the etiquette of ceremonial occasions such as the Spithead review, for all ships to play each foreign ship to its anchorage with the national anthem of the incoming ship. In 1937, not only were the Germans and Russians not speaking, they were not even playing with each other. The Russian ship, slowing to its anchorage, passed in absolute silence, a silence you could cut with your finger aboard the Spee.

When signals from the officer in charge of the roadstead inquired of the Spee as to the absent music, the Spee signalled back briefly that "it was not convenient."

At the conclusion of the royal review the etiquette of the navy is that no ship shall leave its anchorage until a certain stated hour, at which time the King himself has left the line. At that hour to the second, the Spee, without any aye, yes or no, weighed anchor and steamed rapidly away.

This created quite a stir along that great gray, grim line of British ships, not a little of which was concerned with the thought—even away back in sunny 1937—as to what the Spee was up to, where she was heading and why, with the whole British navy anchored.

Leaving The Farms

Movement Of Population Seems To

Be Towards The Towns

A shock to U.S., British and foreign readers of Mountie tales may be the information from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics that only 2.25 per cent, or 57,844 Canadians are engaged in forestry, fishing and trapping. Similarly, the picture of Canada as mainly a land of farmers will have to be done over in the light of the Bureau's returns which show that 7.73 per cent, or 198,592 Canadians are gainfully employed as wage earners in agriculture, while 23.60 per cent, or 606,617 are employed in manufacturing.

It even is no longer true that more Canadians live in the country than in the towns, for the latest census figures list the urban population at 5,572,058, the rural at only 4,804,728.

During 1937, 109,000,000 of the 258,000,000 coins issued by the British Royal Mint were pennies.

To Record War Effort

Leonard W. Brockington, K.C., Has Accepted New Duties

Leonard W. Brockington, K.C., Winnipeg, has been appointed "recorder of Canada's war effort."

Mr. Brockington, who will be attached to the prime minister's office and take up his duties at the beginning of the new year, is general counsel to the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association and has been given leave of absence by that firm.

Last October Mr. Brockington resigned as chairman of the board of governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation after serving a three-year term.

The prime minister's announcement described Mr. Brockington's duties as follows: "To act in an advisory capacity to the war committee of the cabinet in the recording and interpretation of Canada's war effort; to advise and assist the government in providing accurate and essential information in these respects to the people of Canada and to the government of the United Kingdom, and to assist the prime minister by keeping a chronicle and other essential records of the progress of Canada's war effort."

In this capacity, Mr. Brockington will be designated recorder of Canada's war effort and counsellor (in the above respects) to the war committee of the cabinet. He will be attached to the prime minister's office.

Mr. Brockington was born in Cardiff, Wales, in 1888, and came to Canada in 1912 after graduating from the University of Wales and a period of teaching in England.

Newspaper work in Edmonton and a clerkship in the land titles office in Calgary, coupled with a study of law occupied Mr. Brockington until 1919, when he was called to the bar.

For 14 years Mr. Brockington was city solicitor for Calgary and in 1935 he became general counsel to Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, which granted him leave when he was asked to head the newly-organized board of governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation three years ago.

Sandbags Cover German Plane And Torpedo At Imperial War Museum

Museum

Elaborate precautions to protect its thousands of relics of the last war have been taken by the Imperial War Museum, which has been closed since the beginning of September, says the Daily Sketch. Ironically enough a German Fokker plane brought down in the French lines in 1917 and a torpedo fired at a British merchant ship that failed to detonate are now carefully sandbagged to preserve them from possible damage by the country of their origin.

Despite the score play was evenly divided, only three penalties being handed out, one to Shantz in the first period, again to Shantz and one to Morgan in the second.

Didsbury opened the scoring at the 10-minute mark, Wyman netting on a pass from Evans. Carstairs came back with two quick goals by Beckner and Sterling and added one more in each of the remaining periods by G. Edmondson and Bordgett.

In the second period Bowden found the net twice to equalize the score, but in the third stanza Wyman scored again from an assist by Kercher, to make the final score 3-2.

On January 5th the local High School entertained Carstairs in an exhibition game and led all the way, the final score being 7-0.

Fables were turned, however, at Olds on Tuesday of this week when the locals were defeated to the tune of 10-6 on the arena rink.

It was a hard fought game and although Didsbury led in the first two periods, they could not hold their own in the third and Olds were victorious with a score of 10-6.

The Didsbury lineup is as follows: goal, Mike Holub and Geo. Gillrie; defence, Wyman, Cummins, Evans and Barrett; forwards, Buhr, Kercher, Thorn; John Holub, Carleton, Edwards. Subs, Lloyd Erb, Durier, Dunlop and Foote.

The next schedule game at home will be next Tuesday night against Olds and the boys say it will not be 10-6 for Olds.
